Welcome, from the BMA

What does the BMA do?

We represent, support, and advocate for every doctor and medical student in the UK. We fight for fair terms and conditions and campaign on the issues that matter most to our doctors and medical students.

The BMA:

- is your trade union
- represents you locally and nationally
- offers individual employment support and professional development

We represent you

What does this mean?

– When you need individual employment, counselling or career advice, BMA support and expertise is available to guide you

– When an issue arises in your local area, reps and BMA advisers are on hand to negotiate better outcomes

– When it comes to national health issues, we are the leading voice for change in the medical profession

We represent you

In 2024 we supported over 20% of our members with a problem at work

We have over 3,000 reps across the UK ready to answer your questions

In 2024 we helped resolve 51,000+ issues in hospitals

Do you want to get involved?

There are three ways you can get involved besides just being a BMA member:

1. BMA LNC Reps

- Lead workplace representation on the Local Negotiating Committee (LNC)
- Negotiate policies, improve conditions, and grow membership
- Full training with paid time off

2. Workplace Activists

- Support campaigns and represent colleagues
- Flexible involvement, no LNC membership needed
- Build membership and highlight issues to LNC reps

3. Active Members

- Stay connected and support campaigns
- Share updates and recruit members
- No formal training needed

Kickstart your new role!

1. Keep BMA membership up-to-date
2. Check your contract before signing
3. Check your rota with our online checker before starting
4. Ensure GMC registration (compulsory)
5. Join medical defence organisation (strongly advised)
6. Consider finances (take advice if you need it)
7. Attend your first JDF, consider standing as a rep
8. Seek BMA employment advice whenever you need
